

USE GLASSES IN DRY RAID

BUT THEY WEREN'T THOSE

JUST BINOCULARS

Colorado Police Prohibition Squad, Peering Through Them From Afar, See Men Unlawfully Delivering Liquor—Two Japs Arrested At Another Place

The "Dry" law is still working badly out in Colorado, according to the Denver Times, which relates:

Field glasses were added to the equipment of the police prohibition squad yesterday and resulted in the arrest of Ed Tayman, 3127 Lawrence street, for violation of the dry law and the filing of the additional charge of perjury. Gus Mosconi, of Twenty-first and Market streets, was also arrested on the same charge.

Detectives Cook, Klein and Schneider assert that both Tayman and Mosconi perjured themselves by signing false names to liquor shipping affidavits. They produce the affidavits as proof of this assertion.

The officers say they had been certain for several days that Tayman was violating the law in a clever manner and suspected that he was receiving his liquor shipments under another name.

Field Glasses Aid Them.

They secured rooms at the Clayton hotel yesterday and for several hours kept watch on the entrance to the Tayman place with field glasses. Every person who entered and every vehicle which stopped in front were closely scanned through the concealed glasses.

When a delivery wagon drew up before the place and commenced unloading suspicious appearing cases the officers made their entry on the scene and arrested Tayman as he was signing the affidavits.

According to the shipping receipt, Tayman was receiving liquor under the name of John Smith, which he swore was his own. He was placed under arrest and several cases of liquor, which were being delivered, were confiscated.

Tactics resembling those used in the Tayman case were brought into play in the arrest of Mosconi.

Mosconi was also arrested as he was signing another name to shipping affidavits, it is said. In his dealings, the officers charge, he used the name of R. F. Bloom.

Detectives Cook, Klein and Schneider, in all, made five seizures of liquor and arrested the alleged dealers, while Officers Johnson and Armstrong made two arrests yesterday.

Two Japanese, K. Tomura and K. Karata, were taken in custody at Twentieth and Larimer streets and several cases of liquor seized. Jugs filled with a golden colored liquid were found.

HINDSIGHT AND FORESIGHT

In an editorial labelled "Hindsight in Duluth," the Buffalo Enquirer chortles gleefully because as it represents the people of Duluth, having abolished the saloons, are at loss to know where to raise the $170,000 which has been sacrificed in license moneys. The Enquirer says the charter limit on the tax levy must be raised in consequence of the city's lack of foresight in doing away with the saloon. "The wisdom of the people sometimes makes strange demonstrations," says the Enquirer.

Hughes says the country can't be saved by letting it drift. That's where he and W. Wilson differ.

Washington reports that a new apology has been sent to First Chief Carranza. Looks like a habit.

Mr. Bryan is mistaken when he says Hughes is "vicious." The candidate is merely applying the acid test.

A messenger of President Wilson found out that Colorado women were for the administration. No messenger, of course, can be blamed for making good.

Political opponents are beginning to find that why Mr. Hughes kept silence so long wasn't because he had lost his tongue.

Another encouraging feature about our new navy is that when it is completed, Mr. Daniels will not be Secretary of it.

Having discovered that the Democrats don't like what he is saying, Mr. Hughes doubtless is convinced that he is on the right track.

THE FUNNY SIDE OF PROHIBITION

HOW DRY IT IS IN KANSAS.

The drought has reached the stage in this section where the fish appear at the farmhouses asking for a drink.

It is said that Mr. Bryan is going to become a citizen of North Carolina. And poor old North Carolina hasn't yet recovered from those awful floods.

It was an unlucky bunch of drunks that lined the prisoner's bench in municipal court today. Thirteen bleary-eyed, unshaven individuals answered to the bailiff's court roll.

The Republicans made a mistake in not nominating Billy Sunday.—Charleston News and Courier.

Don't worry, anxious one. The Republicans will find some way to finance their campaign without resorting to desperate methods.

WHO INVENTED REFORMERS?

[Lake Mohave, "Inchmull" Enquirer.]
Sunday was intended as a day of worship, rest and recreation. A space was devoted to worship of the Creator. A space was devoted to rest. And a space was devoted to recreation after the six days of toil. Our fathers liked to see Sunday come around. But when the Reformers got through tinkering with Sunday they will fix things so people will hate to see the day come around.

Political Jottings.

The Houston Post reasons that it was easier for its own beloved Democracy to endorse the President's Mexican policy than to defuse it.

While he was about it Senator James Hamilton Lewis also might have explained that the Rome that was "too proud to fight" died a rather disastrous death.

"In all fairness," asks the Boston Transcript, "shouldn't the expense of financing Carranza be borne by the Democratic campaign committee?"

Democrats really haven't any objection to big appropriations for army and navy and internal improvements. They expect the Republicans to rustle the revenue to foot the bills for the next four years.

Hughes says he would like six months to investigate the Administration, but the Administration figures he's doing very well as it is.

Yes, and the same policies that have filled Judge Hughes and others with "a deep sense of shame," have sent many other Americans to their graves.

The President has changed his mind about sending more troops to the border, thus running true to form.

When Tom Taggart talks economy to them, it is time the Democrats stopped their extravagance.

The Hughes smile is beginning to attract favorable attention.

President Entertains Five Progressives.—Headline. Others he simply smuses.

Democratic papers chide Hughes because he says he is "100 per cent, a candidate." The Wilson papers naturally prefer a fifty-fifty candidate.

CHARGE CHIEF OF POLICE CONDUCTED A "BLIND PIG"

Deputy Sheriff and Others Also Caught in Prohibition North Dakota One Defendant Alleges That State's Attorney Who Caused Arrests, Helped to Form Drinking Club

From Mandan, in "dry" North Dakota, comes the following story to the Valley City (N. D.) Times-Record.

State's Attorney Langer today caused the arrest of Chief of Police Mike Knoll, John Ehret, Deputy Sheriff Gabe Eckroth and August Usselman, charging them with the conduct of a blind pig.

The chief is further charged with aiding and abetting the maintenance of a common nuisance. Ehret and Knoll are further alleged to have sold memberships in the German Kultur Society at $5, then charged members with drinks, and then split the profits between themselves with no return to the society. Eckroth and Usselman were originally director and secretary of the organization, before Knoll, treasurer, and Ehret, president, are said to have seized it for their personal profit.

On June 1 State's Attorney Langer raided the Winbauer hotel, where it is alleged the society held forth, but at that time failed to find any evidence. It is then alleged that the German Kultur Society of the Ehret-Knoll combination secured rooms in the old Badger & Wayman building.

To Beat the Law.

It is further alleged that memberships were sold for $5 each, and that fully 100 members were secured, including many from the surrounding country as well as in Mandan. The state's attorney claims that he has positive proof that the official received and paid for 92 gallons of whiskey and 80 casks of beer; that the whiskey was sold for 15 cents a drink and the beer at 25 cents a bottle; that the members were by their membership cards permitted to resort to the place for the purpose of drinking, and that they paid cash for their drinks. Langer alleges that Chief of Police Knoll installed his cousin, Matt Knoll, as custodian of the place, and that while originally started as a society, the place developed into a blind pig in which affairs were wholly controlled by the chief of police and John Ehret.

What happened to the defendants is thus told by the Bismarck (N. D.) Tribune:

Gets Back at Langer.

August Usselman, one of the defendants, fired back at State's Attorney William Langer, who caused his arrest, by charging that Mr. Langer had assisted in the organization of the club, known as the German Kultur Society, and that it had been used to further his candidacy.

Mr. Usselman said that he had been told by Mike Knoll, Gabe Eckroth and John Ehret, also defendants, that the prosecuting attorney had given his permission to the sale of liquor and that he had said that if any complaints were made the club would be warned before any action would be taken.

Mike and Matt Knoll and John Ehret were bound over to the district court, while Eckroth and Usselman were released from custody because it was shown that Usselman had resigned as secretary and that Eckroth was only a trustee and had nothing to do with the management.

opinion rendered by Attorney General Lilly here today.

The attorney general held that the Prohibition party failed to poll for its candidates at least five per cent of the entire vote at the last general election.

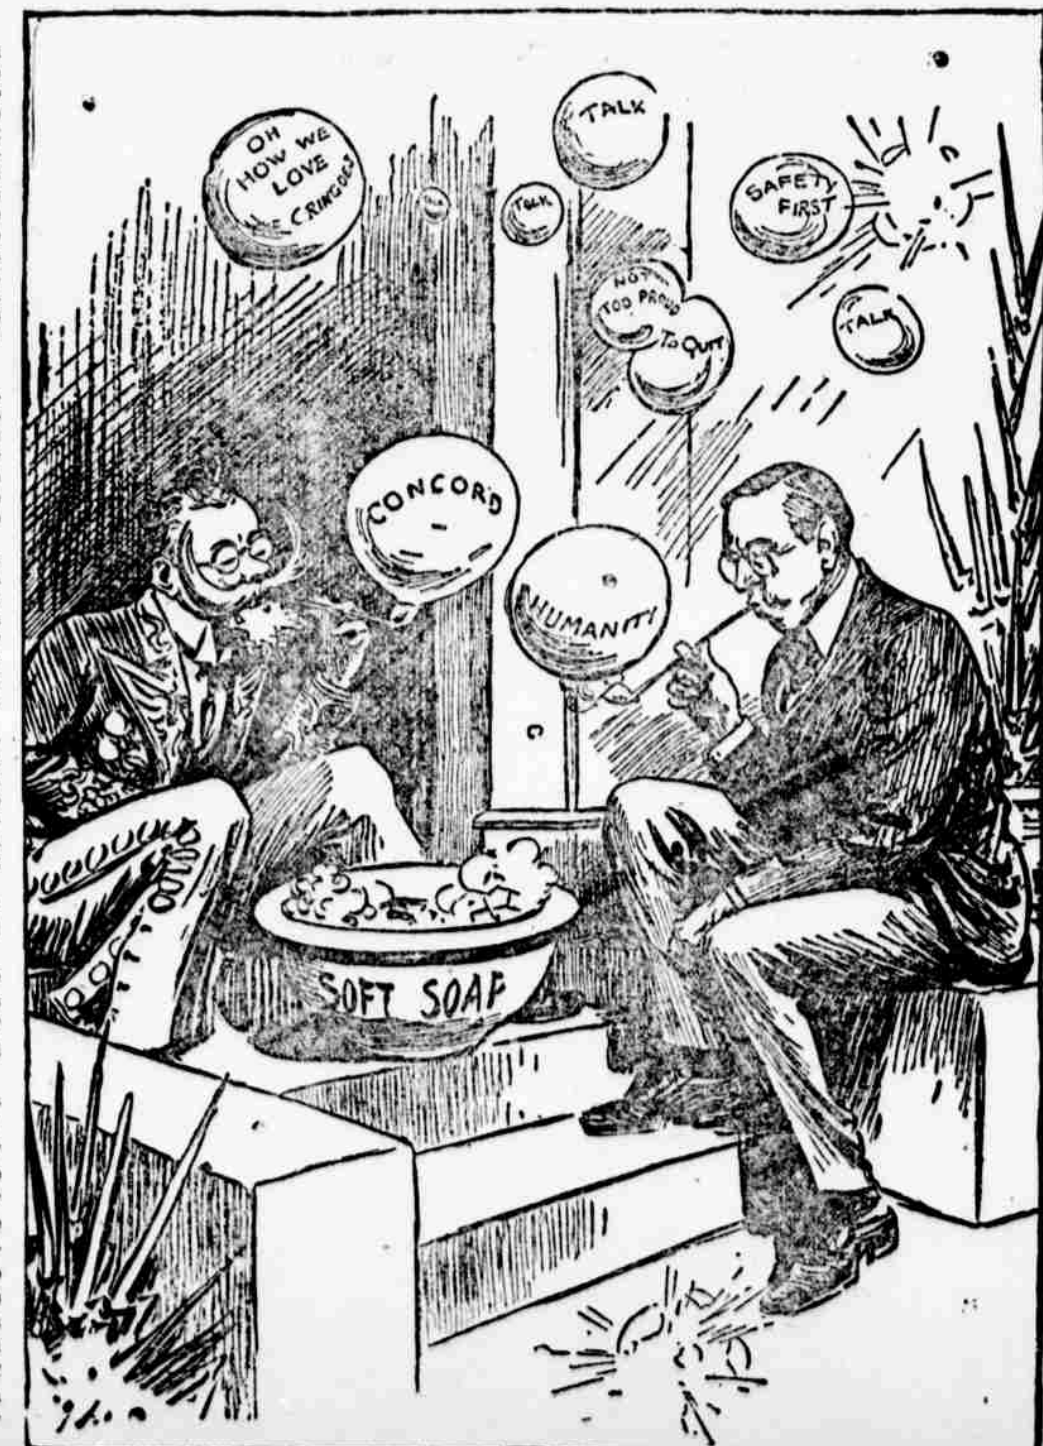

The Boston Transcript details a similar happening in Massachusetts:

The failure of the Prohibition party to file papers for a complete state ticket was the feature of the last day for filing nomination papers. The Prohibition party at the time of closing, 5 p. m., yesterday, according to the election division of the secretary's office, had not made any nomination for United States senator, and had failed to secure a sufficient number of signatures to put their candidates on the state ticket below lieutenant governor on the ballot.

No papers whatever, according to the secretary's office, were filed for Eugene N. Foss as a candidate on any of the tickets for United States senator.
